

What about dues?

As a non-profit labor organization, the Teamsters Union is funded exclusively by the membership. The union accepts no money from outside sources in order to protect its integrity and independence.

The member-voted International Constitution and locally approved bylaws provide for a dues structure. Dues are collected monthly based upon your hourly rate of pay. The formula for calculation is: base hourly rate x 2.5 (for workers who can legally strike) or 2.25 (for workers who cannot legally strike) rounded to the nearest dollar.

What are dues used for?

Seventy-eight percent of dues stay locally to fund representation for bargaining units, professional staff, negotiators, legal resources like retaining firms and staff attorneys to represent disciplinary matters and contract disputes, local organizers and administrative staff. This also allows local use of funds for campaigns to help achieve strong contracts.

Twenty-two percent fund international headquarters in Washington, D.C., which provides assistance with departments such as: economics and contracts, strategic campaigns, organizing, legislative affairs, health and safety, communications, training and development, legal and more. Part of that 22% also goes to affiliations with central labor councils that coordinate efforts among affiliated unions.
